Update Regarding the Current Service Disruption

Broadcast live on Quebec television, radio and online news media. No interpreter or subtitles required.

2:30 PM

Good afternoon, everyone.

We are providing an update regarding the ongoing incident currently affecting municipal operations.

At this stage, all municipal services are affected to some degree. The impact varies from one service to another, but disruptions are now being experienced across the organization.

Our teams continue to assess the situation and are working to maintain critical operations wherever possible.

We are in direct communication with the Mayor and senior municipal leadership to establish a coordinated response and determine the most appropriate course of action.

The threat we are currently facing is serious, complex and continues to evolve. For that reason, decisions are being made carefully and in close consultation with the teams responsible for emergency management, cybersecurity, public safety and essential municipal services.

Our immediate priority is to protect residents, employees and municipal infrastructure while maintaining essential services to the greatest extent possible.

Technical teams are continuing their investigation to determine the full scope of the incident. Because the situation is still developing, we do not want to speculate about the origin of the threat, the individuals who may be responsible or the extent of the impact until that information has been verified.

We recognize that residents may experience delays, interruptions or temporary unavailability of municipal services.

We also understand the concern this situation may create within the community.

The municipality is actively evaluating its response options with the Mayor and the crisis management team. As decisions are confirmed, additional information will be communicated to the public.

At this time, we cannot provide a precise timeline for the restoration of municipal services.

Residents are encouraged to monitor official municipal communication channels for updates and to remain cautious of information circulating through unofficial sources.

We will continue to provide updates as verified information becomes available.

I will now take a few questions.
